The Faithfire Archive

200 full-book starter prompts.

Ten quieter worlds. Zero overlap with The Faithfire Vault.

How to Use

This archive contains exactly 200 full-book starter prompts made for the Christian Romantic Suspense Royalties Bot on Royalties Bot 2.0 at app.royaltiesbot.com. Every prompt supplies a different creative foundation, enters the bot's normal guided workflow via Option B (Premium Prompt paste), respects its Yes approval checkpoints, and then directs it to write the complete Christian romantic suspense novel in finished prose chapter by chapter into the manuscript pane. None of the numbered prompts ends with a concept, dossier, profile, twist list, outline, or publishing asset as the final product.

1 - Open your bot Go to app.royaltiesbot.com, launch the Christian Romantic Suspense Royalties Bot, and start a new book project (or reopen the chat for your current book).

2 - Establish your project Give the bot your pen name and choose Short Novel or Long Novel when asked. If you already have a Story Bible or Series Continuity Handoff, paste or upload it before using a prompt.

3 - Choose Option B When the bot offers concept paths, choose Option B — Premium Prompt (Recommended). That is the path these Archive prompts are built for.

4 - Paste the full prompt Copy the complete prompt under the COPY INTO label, not only its title. Add any known project details in the MY INPUTS brackets, then follow the bot's normal setup questions and approve the Story Bible or other checkpoint with Yes when you are satisfied.

5 - Continue chapter by chapter After approval, let the bot draft the real manuscript into the manuscript pane. When a chapter ends, type Yes to advance until the final chapter, case resolution, and faith-honoring HEA are written. Do not treat an outline as completion.

6 - Review and revise Read each chapter, request changes where needed, and keep accepted details in the bot's continuity record so later chapters do not contradict established canon.

Important: review and personalize all AI-assisted material. Verify current platform settings, policies, category choices, URLs, and any factual claims before publication. The prompts deliberately tell the bot not to invent research, rankings, reviews, earnings, or account-specific information. These 200 Archive beginnings do not repeat The Faithfire Vault's 100 — own both and you hold 300 unique prompts.

Christian Romantic Suspense Royalties Bot — Option B Premium Prompt for Royalties Bot 2.0 at app.royaltiesbot.com. Use the case seed below as the fixed creative start for a full Christian romantic suspense book. This is a manuscript-production command, not a concept brief, dossier, or outline as the final product.

CASE SEED: FBI special agent Mara Ellison is assigned overnight to protect a pastor's daughter who leaked a megachurch's shell-company trail to a federal tip line—and the first attempt on the witness's life happens before Mara finishes her coffee. Hero Cade Brennan, a former Marine now consulting church security, knows the congregation's elders are more frightened of scandal than of God, and his quiet morning prayers unsettle Mara's carefully sealed-off faith. As wiretaps, forged donation records, and a midnight approach at a safe house tighten the net, Mara must decide whether trusting Cade—and asking God for wisdom—is more dangerous than running the detail alone. Clean romantic tension builds under real federal stakes; justice and HEA arrive together.

STORY EMPHASIS: Build around federal protection duty, congregational corruption, and a heroine learning that faith can be tactical courage rather than soft escape.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. Treat blanks according to your normal workflow and ask only the questions or approvals you genuinely require to build the book.

BOOK-PRODUCTION / COMPLETE BOOK: Follow your normal guided workflow. Lock pen name and Short Novel or Long Novel, offer title options if needed, show the Story Bible (or other checkpoint), and pause for Yes. After approval, write the novel in polished prose chapter by chapter into the manuscript pane—Prologue if your workflow uses one, then Chapter 1 through case resolution and a faith-honoring HEA. After each chapter is saved in the manuscript pane, wait for Yes before the next. Keep clean CRS (kisses-only/closed-door), fair clues before payoff, lived faith over sermon dumps, and a hope-filled HEA. Do not stop at an outline or dossier.

This is a manuscript-production command, not a concept brief, dossier, or outline as the final product.

CASE SEED: When ATF agent Simone Ward uncovers a blackmail ring targeting Christian nonprofit directors with staged photos, her own brother's ministry is next on the list. Hero Eli Navarro, a quiet forensic accountant seconded to the task force, believes truth is a form of worship and refuses to bury evidence to spare reputations. As threats escalate from ruined careers to a warehouse fire meant to look accidental, Simone and Eli must choose integrity over image while a careful attraction grows between late-night case files and early church parking-lot talks. No smut; real danger; redemptive hope.

STORY EMPHASIS: Emphasize integrity versus image, nonprofit blackmail, and romance forged in shared moral courage.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: U.S. Marshal Rhea Colton relocates a key witness into a small Texas town and discovers the safe house pastor already knows too much about the case—because he once prosecuted the same cartel as an AUSA. Hero Pastor Jonas Reid traded courtrooms for a pulpit after a case cost him nearly everything, and Rhea's arrival forces him to decide whether protection or preaching is the obedience God wants now. When cartel scouts infiltrate the church men's retreat, Rhea and Jonas must trust each other's skills and each other's God before the witness's cover fails. Faith, duty, and restrained romance braid under ticking-clock suspense.

STORY EMPHASIS: Center WITSEC logistics meeting pastoral courage; keep danger concrete and romance clean.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: Cybercrime agent Naomi Briggs tracks a dark-web seller who hides trafficking logistics inside stolen church-app prayer requests, and the next coded 'psalm' names her childhood congregation. Hero Micah Trent, a seminary-trained cybersecurity volunteer for denominational IT, recognizes the linguistic fingerprint of a former youth-group hacker they both trusted. As phishing attacks hit elders' phones and a courier almost snatches Naomi outside a prayer meeting, she and Micah must decode the messages before another teen vanishes—while learning that partnership can heal old spiritual wounds. Clean chemistry; high digital-and-physical stakes.

STORY EMPHASIS: Blend cybercrime with sacred-text misuse; romance grows through shared problem-solving and restored trust.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: DEA agent Lena Ortega goes undercover as a worship-team temp at a border-town church suspected of being a stash-point front—and the first person who recognizes her fake name is the youth pastor she walked away from seven years ago. Hero David Ruiz has rebuilt his life on grace, not grudges, but Lena's mission puts his teens in the blast radius of a cartel counter-op. When a shipment night collides with a baptism weekend, Lena must choose between the bust and the people she still loves, while David's steady faith challenges every wall she built in the field. Suspense is real; romance is closed-door and hope-forward.

STORY EMPHASIS: Undercover church setting with second-chance faith romance; avoid romanticizing crime—justice and HEA both land.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: After a courthouse shooting, FBI crisis negotiator Avery Quinn is ordered to extract a wounded informant from a standoff inside a Christian counseling center—where the gunman claims God told him to 'cleanse' the staff. Hero Dr. Seth Lang, the center's trauma chaplain, refuses to abandon the clients still trapped inside and becomes Avery's only calm voice on the interior channel. As demands escalate and a secondary shooter circles the parking lot, Avery's training collides with Seth's conviction that every life in that building still matters to heaven. Romance kindles in aftermath trust; clean; HEA after justice.

STORY EMPHASIS: Hostage/negotiator pressure with chaplain hero; faith as courage under fire, not slogans.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: When an anonymous tip to the FBI names special agent Jordan Hale as the next target of a revenge plot tied to a cold human-trafficking bust, she is forced into a protective rotation she hates—run by the one partner who once questioned her instincts. Hero Nick Calder still regrets the hearing that nearly ended Jordan's career, and guarding her means facing both a hit team and his own pride. Clues point to a compromised task-force clerk and a false 'ministry' charity, while Jordan's buried prayer life resurfaces under fear she cannot outrun alone. Clean protector romance with mutual respect earned.

STORY EMPHASIS: Revenge plot against an agent; second-chance partnership; faith rekindled under threat.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: CBP investigator Priya Santos follows a smuggling corridor that ends at a volunteer border ministry's warehouse—and the ministry's logistics coordinator is her estranged husband, who left the agency for faith work she never understood. Hero Mateo Santos believes the warehouse is clean until Priya's evidence proves someone inside is using mercy shipments as cover. Together they must expose the traitor without destroying the genuine aid that saves lives, while deciding whether their marriage vows still hold under the weight of secrets and danger. Faith-forward reconciliation; real suspense; clean intimacy.

STORY EMPHASIS: Marriage-in-crisis CRS with smuggling-cover ministry; integrity of mercy work is central.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: IRS Criminal Investigation agent Holly Greer freezes assets linked to a faith-based adoption agency—and a bomb threat arrives at her son's Christian school the same afternoon. Hero Principal Grant Keller, a former military police officer, locks down the campus and becomes Holly's unexpected ally when the threat letters quote Scripture twisted into intimidation. As financial forensics uncover coerced 'donations' and a missing caseworker, Holly must protect her child without abandoning the truth, while Grant's steady presence teaches her that asking for help is not weakness. Clean single-mom romance; justice with hope.

STORY EMPHASIS: Financial crimes hitting family; school lockdown tension; soft romance under hard stakes.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: FBI wire room analyst Tess Monroe hears a murder planned in code during surveillance of a suburban Bible study—and recognizes the intended victim as her mentor's widow. Hero Detective Cole Brannan, the local liaison, wants the case kept quiet to avoid panicking the neighborhood church, but Tess knows silence will get someone killed. When the coded night arrives early and Tess becomes a witness the conspirators did not expect, Cole must choose between departmental politics and protecting the woman whose courage is rewriting his cynicism. Faith communities as both refuge and risk; clean romance.

STORY EMPHASIS: Wiretap thriller in church-adjacent suburbia; whistleblowing courage; protector romance.

CASE SEED: Secret Service agent Noelle Pierce draws an unusual temporary detail: protect a visiting Christian musician whose stadium prayer event has drawn credible threats from an extremist cell. Hero tour manager and former Army medic Levi Grant distrusts federal 'babysitters' until a venue-rigging near-miss proves the threat is inside the crew. As Noelle and Levi chase forged credentials and a drone-dropped manifesto, her private crisis of calling meets his hard-won belief that courage and prayer can share the same breath. Clean romance under public-event danger.

STORY EMPHASIS: Protective detail around a faith event; insider threat; romance through mutual competence.

CASE SEED: When FBI cold-case agent Brooke Ellis finds a decades-old federal tip handwritten in the margin of a donated hymnal, she reopens a missing-intern investigation that her own father once buried. Hero Pastor Aaron Mills, who inherited the church attic archives, wants truth more than institutional peace and becomes Brooke's reluctant research partner. Threats arrive as vandalized pews and a brake-cut on Brooke's car, forcing them to decide whether exposing a retired agent's sin is obedience or betrayal. Dual wounds, clean attraction, redemptive justice.

STORY EMPHASIS: Cold case unlocked by sacred object; institutional cover-up; faith-led truth-telling.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: U.S. Marshal Sienna Brooks must move a cartel accountant through three states in one night after a courthouse leak—and the only pilot cleared for the hop is her ex-fiancé, who left the service for mission aviation. Hero Jake Harlan still flies mercy routes and still loves Sienna enough to risk the storm front closing their path. When a chase plane forces an emergency landing near a rural chapel airstrip, they have hours to keep the witness alive and decide if forgiveness can share a cockpit with unfinished vows. Clean second-chance; aerial suspense; HEA.

STORY EMPHASIS: Night transfer + aviation danger; second-chance faith romance; witness survival.

CASE SEED: Multi-agency task force leader Gina Torres bans 'religion talk' in the war room—until a serial arsonist begins torching storefront churches on nights the team meets, using their schedule as a clock. Hero chaplain-liaison Ben Copeland is embedded against Gina's preference and insists the pattern is theological as well as tactical. As a warehouse trap nearly kills two agents, Gina must accept that understanding the arsonist's twisted creed—and recovering her own silenced prayers—may be the only way to stop him. Clean slow-burn; moral clarity; justice.

STORY EMPHASIS: Arson serial case targeting churches; leader's faith thaw; chaplain hero.

CASE SEED: CIA contractor-turned-FBI liaison Iris Chen investigates a 'charity convoy' funneling dual-use tech overseas under missionary cover—and the logistics director is the college friend who once prayed her through grief. Hero Daniel Okonkwo believes the convoy is legitimate until Iris's evidence forces him to admit someone on his board is running a shadow cargo. Together they must protect real aid workers while stopping the smuggling, as old friendship tips into cautious romance under surveillance and moral fog. Clean; international-adjacent stakes kept personal and local in climax.

STORY EMPHASIS: Mission-cover smuggling; friendship-to-romance; integrity of true mercy work.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: On the Sunday a grand jury subpoena is to be served at a suburban church, process-server and federal contractor Maya Lind is ambushed in the parking lot—and saved by the associate pastor who was meant to receive the papers. Hero Pastor Chris Vale knows the subpoena will split his congregation and still believes the law must be honored if the allegations of elder embezzlement are true. When the ambush crew returns for the documents—and for Maya—Chris becomes both witness and protector while Maya rediscovers the faith she abandoned after a corrupt case years ago. Clean romance; legal-faith collision.

STORY EMPHASIS: Subpoena service under attack; pastoral integrity; heroine's faith return.

CASE SEED: A traveling chapel trailer used for ranch-hand services is stolen—with a locked strongbox of benevolence cash and a witness phone inside—and chaplain-coordinator Elise Grant will not let the story end as 'theft.' Hero ranch security consultant and ex-cop Brody Kane tracks the trailer into a canyon meet where the phone's video implicates a crew boss. Elise insists on mercy for pressured workers without letting the ringleader walk, and Brody discovers her courage is rewriting his burnout. Clean romance; justice with compassion.

STORY EMPHASIS: Stolen chapel trailer; benevolence funds; mercy-and-justice theme.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. CASE SEED: Glass-walled ER consult room captures a reflection of a nurse being threatened—heroine charge nurse Noelle Pierce enhances the footage and becomes hunted. Hero attending Levi Grant refuses to abandon Noelle when admin wants the video deleted. Clean romance; institutional cover-up; hope.

STORY EMPHASIS: Reflection evidence; charge nurse + attending; cover-up.

MY INPUTS: [pen name or ask me], [Short Novel or Long Novel], [tone], [target reader], [standalone or series], [time period], [heat/violence boundaries — keep clean CRS], and [anything that must or must not appear]. Treat blanks according to your normal workflow and ask only the questions or approvals you genuinely require to build the book.

BOOK-PRODUCTION / COMPLETE BOOK: Follow your normal guided workflow. Lock pen name and Short Novel or Long Novel, offer title options if needed, show the Story Bible (or other checkpoint), and pause for Yes. After approval, write the novel in polished prose chapter by chapter into the manuscript pane—Prologue if your workflow uses one, then Chapter 1 through case resolution and a faith-honoring HEA. After each chapter is saved in the manuscript pane, wait for Yes before the next. Keep clean CRS (kisses-only/closed-door), fair clues before payoff, lived faith over sermon dumps, and a hope-filled HEA. Do not stop at an outline or dossier.
